Valencia CF once again reached the Champions League final. Finishing only 5th in La Liga, Valencia focused most of its resources on the international competition, a late goal from new signing John Carew helping them knock Arsenal out of the tournament in the quarter finals. The semis consisted of going against Leeds United, not present at that level for more than 25 years.

Since Valencia is the birthplace of paella, it would be a serious no-no to leave the city without trying the iconic rice dish. Of course this means you'll find no shortage of paella restaurants in town, but Casa Carmela is one of the best. The family-run restaurant got its start serving beach goers out of a shack on Playa Malvarrosa, and today it specializes in paella cooked over wood fires ...
